A Walking With the Poor Grant supports a monthly dinner at the Br. Francis Shelter in Anchorage, Alaska, amounting to 100 meals each month.

“This takes a lot of stress off of the staff at the shelter,” said Fr. David Nations, C.M., Pastor at the Cathedral of Our Lady of Guadalupe in Anchorage. “This ministry also benefits the Hispanic men’s group of the parish in their spiritual growth through service.”

A Walking With the Poor Grant provided funding for the Pathways to Progress program at St. Francis Community Services in St. Louis, Missouri, where 25 families received a range of services to help them with everything from obtaining academic degrees to earning a stable income.

“Here is a young woman who has mapped out her future with clarity, intention, and determination,” said Cheryl Archibald, President of the SFCS Board, of one of the program’s participants. “She is not just surviving; she is building a future.”

St. Elizabeth Ann Seton Food Pantry and Soup Kitchen at St. Vincent de Paul Parish in Chicago serves more than 90 meals a day, five days a week and provides other services, like hygiene kits, socks, gloves and winter clothing, and much more.

“You make a decision to go into a place to better your life,” said Tyrone, a guest at the soup kitchen. “Once you have healthy thoughts and a healthy body, everything gets better.”

Ozanam Inn in New Orleans, with the help of a Walking With the Poor Grant, served more than 1,600 people with services like food, shelter, clothing, mail distribution, medical services, adult education, and more.

“Ozanam Inn gave me more than a bed; it gave me a second chance,” said one former resident. “I now have a job and a place to call home.”

Vincentian Marian Youth SEMO, based in Ste. Genevieve, Missouri, took 91 students to Springfield, Missouri, in June for its annual Operation Overhaul program, in which the students and adult members completed home improvement projects for a variety of people in need (see story on page 4 and 5).

“VMY SEMO seeks to create pathways of systemic change for those it ministers to and enflame in its students and young adults a passion for living out the Vincentian charism and virtues they encounter.”

The Western Province funded two Richardson Impact Fund Scholarships for students in need to attend Vincentian high schools in Chicago and Perryville, Missouri.

“Thank you for the wondrous opportunity,” said Julian Moschoplous, a senior at DePaul College Prep in Chicago. “It’s made it much easier to focus on academics ... and being the best student I possibly can be.”
